General conditions Media accreditation

In addition to the general conditions, a number of specific conditions also apply for media.

(1) In the interest of journalistic work, accreditations will be issued to journalists and photographers who wish to publish about the event in question. By providing the accreditation, IG2020 gives permission for publication in the public media.

(2) The issuance of an accreditation takes place on the condition that the applicant provides a reasonable guarantee of publication.

(3) All instructions from the organizer (employees, officials, other volunteers) must be followed. The organization can determine that journalists and / or photographers must go to a certain zone.

(4) the organization provides a media centre where workplaces are set up that are only accessible to holders of a media accreditation.

(5) The organization can oblige people to be recognizable in certain positions, for example by wearing a badge or media bib. However, the accreditation limit determines whether or not to award a badge or bib.
